Ministry of Culture of the Republic of Azerbaijan
Baku's historic inner city, known as Icherisheher, includes the 12th-century Maiden Tower and the complex of the 15th-century Shirvan Shah's Palace, considered the pearl of Azerbaijani architecture. Perfectly situated on the shore of the Caspian Sea and along the famed Silk Road, medieval Baku was a busy trading center where Arabic, European, Persian, Ottoman, and Russian cultures shared caravanserais and culture as they brought treasures from China to Constantinople and back again. Today Icherisheher is home to 1,300 families and includes mosques, bath-houses, ateliers and other historical buildings, making it an open-air museum.

The World Heritage emblem symbolizes the interdependence of the world's natural and cultural diversity. The central square represents the achievements of human skill and inspiration, and the circle celebrates the gifts of nature. The emblem is round, like the world, a symbol of global protection for the heritage of all humankind.

The Earthen Architecture Conservation Programme works toward conserving and revitalizing earthen architecture, which is threatened by natural disasters and industrialization. Currently, some one hundred properties on the World Heritage List are partially or totally built with earth.

World Heritage sites are inscribed on the List on the basis of their merits as forming a significant contribution to the cultural and natural heritage of the world. Their outstanding universal value is considered to be of importance for future generations.

Conserving the diversity of life on Earth is critical to global human welfare. With the support of the World Heritage Convention, the most important biodiversity sites receive international recognition as well as technical and financial assistance to deal with threats such as agricultural encroachment, alien species and poaching.

Convention concerning the Protection of the World Cultural and Natural Heritage, adopted by the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization, at its General Conference, Paris, 16 November 1972.

EXTRACTS

... parts of the cultural or natural heritage are of outstanding interest and therefore need to be preserved as part of the world heritage of humankind as a whole.

... [with] the magnitude and gravity of the new dangers threatening... [the world's heritage], it is incumbent on the international community as a whole to participate in the protection of the cultural and natural heritage of outstanding universal value...

... the Committee shall establish... under the title of "World Heritage List", a list of the properties participating in the protection of the cultural and natural heritage... which it considers as having outstanding universal value...

Dense forests of cacti cover the dry Tehuacan Cuicatlan Valley in southern Mexico. Here archaeologists have identified the remains of the oldest cities in North America and evidence of the origins of agriculture in Mesoamerica, where indigenous cultures domesticated maize, beans, pumpkins, and peppers.

Colorful fish, dolphins, and sea turtles swim in the protected waters around Costa National Park just 20 miles off Panama's Pacific coast. The park encompasses Costa, 35 smaller islands, and an enormous coral reef. Endemic animals and plants evolved in near isolation on Costa, which housed only a small penal colony for nearly a century.

Towers of red sandstone loom above dunes in Algeria's Tassili n'Ajjer National Park. In more than 15,000 paintings and engravings covering the rocks, prehistoric inhabitants depicted the hippos, giraffes, and crocodiles that lived in this "land of many rivers" before the grassland became desert.

Portuguese colonizers built the St. Sebastian Fortress on the coral island of Mozambique in the mid-16th century after sealing control of nearby routes to India and Southeast Asia from Arab traders. Stone churches, courtyards, and gridded streets recall the island's role as a colonial capital built on spices, ivory, and slaves.

On the west coast of Madagascar, the sharp limestone peaks of Tsingy de Bemahitsa watch over the forests and rivers below. Biodiversity thrives in the 1,500-square-kilometer nature reserve that protects rare lemurs, birds, reptiles and amphibians.

Eleven stone arches span 180 meters across the Drina River in Visegrad, Bosnia and Herzegovina. Completed in 1577, the Mehmed Paša Sokolović Bridge honors a 16th-century Ottoman leader and symbolizes ties between East and West in the work of Nobel Laureate Ivo Andrić.

Ajlunt Fort is one of dozens of stunning towers, palaces, and tombs constructed in Ajlunt in the United Arab Emirates. For centuries, residents have used complex underground irrigation canals, known as aflaj, to bring life to the desert, beckoning travelers and traders.

Heads of Mongolian gazelle, or deer, winter in the snowy landscapes of Dauria in Mongolia and the Russian Federation. This international steppe forests, grasslands, lakes, and wetlands that provide critical breeding and resting spots for millions of migrating birds, including sixteen endangered species

On the Republic of Korea's Jeju Island, Seongsan Ilchulbong, also known as "Honeycomb Peak," is a tall cone formed by volcanic activity 5,000 years ago. Volcanic eruptions gave birth to Jeju's unique landscape of black rock and lava tubes two million years ago.

From the vast plains of the Serengeti to historic cities such as Vienna, Lima and Kyoto; from the prehistoric rock art on the Iberian Peninsula to the Statue of Liberty; from the Kasbah of Algiers to the Imperial Palace in Beijing — all of these places, as varied as they are, have one thing in common. All are World Heritage sites of outstanding cultural or natural value to humanity and are worthy of protection for future generations to know and enjoy.

WORLD HERITAGE 2018-2019

The United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization (UNESCO) works with countries around the world to identify and protect cultural and natural places that merit recognition as part of the common heritage of humankind. UNESCO adopted the Convention concerning the Protection of the World Cultural and Natural Heritage in 1972. Since then, 193 countries have ratified the treaty, and at present 1092 properties are inscribed on the list — 845 of which are cultural, 209 natural and 38 mixed (a combination of the two). They are noted here in alphabetical order by country and in the order they were listed.
